- Vermicompost Pit has been developed.

Best Practices:

As an advancement of our stated Best Practices:

Growing Within

The college provides students with an opportunity to break out of the straitjacket of rote learning practised in most schools and encourages them to think independently by exposing them to innovative means of teaching. They are encouraged to think independently and articulate their views. They are also given opportunities to discover their interests and develop other skills through extra-curricular and enrichment activities. All the student activities mentioned above ensure a holistic environment for the all-round growth of our students. Coming from diverse backgrounds to the college, they learn important qualities of empathy and team work as they are provided equal opportunities to participate and excel in various academic and extra-curricular activities, thus erasing class and caste barrier.

Reaching Out

We are proud of our community outreach pilot programme: Project Protsahan or Project Hope. It germinated from the idea that all of us need to contribute to society to express our gratitude and so an outline of an informal pilot programme, where students from the college would visit nearby government schools as mentors for school girl students, was made. It was decided that the District Magistrate's office would act as a bridge between the College and the school and provide certificates of appreciation to the college students for this service. Nineteen students from our college were shortlisted for this project. The success of this project will become a motivating factor for it to be replicated across the district and beyond.

The various above-mentioned activities of NSS further strengthened the interaction with the community.

Future Plans:

- Make health insurance available at reasonable cost to students.
- Develop a mini studio with live auto feed in the college premises by Delhi University Community Radio.
- Develop two more Computer Labs.
- Improve banking services for staff and students by providing an e-lounge.
- Work towards reducing our carbon footprint and take more green initiatives like developing an integrated waste management mechanism.
